

HANSON GETS OUT ON WRIT

Defendant in Carnes's Suit for Alienation of Wife's Affections
Taken to Court.

MEN HAD BEEN PARTNERS.

Hanson Has Been in Ludlow Street Jail Pending Trial of Suit—Wants to Be Released.

Justice Clarke, in the Supreme Court to-day, on the application of Howe & Hummel, issued a writ of habeas corpus directing the Warden of Ludlow Street Jail to produce in the Supreme Court, before Justice Dugro, Arthur N. Hanson. The man was arrested in an action brought against him by his partner in business, Frank M. Carnes, and is held in default of $2,500 bail.

Hanson is required as a witness in his own defense in an action brought against him by Carnes to recover $25,000 damages for the alleged alienation by Hanson of the affections of Mrs. Nellie R. Carnes.

Carnes has two other suits pending against Hanson. One of them is for a dissolution of the partnership existing between them for the manufacture of a beef extract, and the other to recover $2,500 from Hanson, of which Carnes claims he was defrauded when Hanson induced him to go into partnership with him and replace W. H. Higgins, who had been Hanson's former partner. It was on this transaction Hanson was arrested.

Carnes attaches to his papers a letter alleged to have been written by Mrs. Carnes to Hanson, in which she said:

"How I long to see you, dear. I promised to let you alone this week, but I am afraid I cannot. Shall go over to the city either to-morrow or Friday, as it is necessary, and I shall telephone you, and, if possible, you will see me. 'Things remain the same here. I have heard your name many times since Sunday by some one in whose ear you have been hawking. She says you are a man—when there is anything to be done you do it. With all love, 'NELL'."

Carnes says he discontinued his marital relations with his wife on discovering her conduct with Hanson.

DUEL WITH PAINT
FOUGHT IN MIDAIR.

After Covering Each Other with Many Hues, Two Painters Turned on Policemen
Who Attempted to Stop Fight

On a swaying painter's scaffold, in midair, two knights of the brush fought a duel to-day with paint, brushes and mauls of many colors as their weapons. Two policemen interfered in the fight and the painters with one accord turned on the officers. They changed the blue coats into red-yellow-orange-purple-green coats. Not a vestige of blue showed when the painters ceased their struggling, and they were in no better condition. Other policemen who took them to the Gates Avenue Court had to handle them with the tips of their fingers.

John Klaines and Abraham Cooperstein are the victors of the brush. They quarreled over a pot of paint while on their bridge at a house in Pitkin avenue, near Rockaway avenue, Brooklyn. Klaines threw a pot of red paint at Cooperstein and covered his head and shoulders with the gory-looking stuff. Cooperstein swung his paintpot so that it came down on Klaines' head, and a yellow flood was let loose. Klaines fell down and Cooperstein leaped on him.

They mixed. So did the paints. Some very artistic effects in streaky orange were being produced when a small pot of blue got tangled in Klaines' foot. That made the fighters feel blue. Their blows made each black and blue besides.

Both were half blinded by the mixtures, but each was able to recognize a policeman on approach. Officer Taterstein was the first to come up through the house and climb on the scaffold.

The two jumped on him and added pain to injury. Another policeman came to his rescue and he got daubed also. So dripping were all four that after the painters had subdued none dared to go through the house to get down. They lowered the scaffold.

The policeman tapped at a tailor's shop while the painters were taken to court by others.

M'CANN BOY'S MOTHER
DEMANDS ONLY JUSTICE.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 4.—Mrs. John McCann, the mother of the little boy who was shot, died her eyes this morning and talked of the shooting:

"My boy was doing no harm. What could a child of twelve do against a lot of armed men behind a stockade? He just peeped through the boards and then they shot at him. 'IT'S A SHAME, A CRYING SHAME, THAT HARM HAS COME TO HIM, AND THE MEN WHO SHOT HIM MUST BE PUNISHED. It is murder if he dies, nothing else but murder. Last night I wanted to see them lynched, but I was distracted, upset, bewildered. This morning I am calmer, I have calmed myself, and I have trust in the jury and the bench of the county to give them all they deserve. 'But it is not the punishment of these men I care for most. It isn't revenge that I want. It is the life of my little boy. If they could only assure me he will live I shall be happy.'"

Just as the Board of Estimate and Apportionment was beginning its session to-day an injunction issued by Justice Gaynor, in Brooklyn, was served on the members. The order enjoins the Board from taking any action to review the decisions of the old Board of Public Improvements in relation to the division of assessment for improvements between the city and the property-owners.

The order will be heard before Justice Gaynor on Tuesday.

Eighteen hearings of assessments were set for this afternoon. They were adjourned as soon as Justice Gaynor's order was received.

"I'LL QUIT F ORDERED BY THE MAYOR!" ---PARTRIDGE.

But, Says the Commissioner, He Doesn't Think Low Will Ask Him to Resign—Department in Bad Shape, Says Dr. Slicer.

IS THE FORCE FULL OF SOFT COAL SMOKE?

"If Mayor Low wants my resignation he can have it," said Police Commissioner Partridge to-day. "I shall not tender it unless I am asked to do so, and I do not anticipate any such request."

Notwithstanding this statement the Commissioner appeared worried when he reached his office to-day. He said he had read in all the papers that the City Club had called upon the Mayor for his (Partridge's) resignation, but that he placed no confidence in the statements.

"I have been denying similar rumors ever since I took the office," said the Commissioner. "Most of the assertions that are made regarding my position are based upon rumors that are unfounded. I am getting tired of talking about them."

"In the first place," said Dr. Slicer, "Mr. Peckham, Mr. Cutting, Mr. Burnet and myself did not call upon the Mayor yesterday and the day before and ever since I have been Commissioner of Police. If the Mayor wants me to quit all he has to do is to say so. Certainly I shall not resign unless I am informed by him that it is his wish that I should get out."

Concerning the statements that the City Club reported that the discipline of the Police Department has deteriorated and that the force is as demoralized morally as it was under Tammany rule, the Commissioner had nothing to say.

"The problem is to determine what is the best remedial action to be taken and the report of the City Club will embrace suggestions along that line."
